COMMENT OF THE DAY

ECISION to decontrol antibiotic

drugs is a concession to importers of British pharmaceuticals the outcome of which will be watched with interest by the public. The whole argument of the importers has been that Government's controlled prices of these drugs were unrealistic and made no provision for natural increases in purchasing costs, the result being that the commodities became a dead loss to retail at the official rates. There were other reasons, however, for the sudden increase in retail prices, one being the United States embargo. Retailers are not entirely free from blame either for the so-called shortages or for the outrageous prices. However, importers have now satisfied Government that there are sufficient stocks of British prospect that these can readily be replaced; wherefore it is unnecessary any longer to impose arbitrary and unrealistic controlled retail prices. It would be foolish, however, either for the general public or members of the professions who dispense these drugs, to imagine that retail prices will fall to anything like the previously prevailing controlled rates. The best assurance that can be given by dealers is that there will be a sufficiency of the drugs and that they will be "made available at reasonable prices." One interesting

Bangalore, Southern India, Mar. 2.

Five Indians were accused here today of trying to polson the 45-year-old Chief Justice of Mysore, after "sorcery, and witch. craft" had falled.

- The police told the City's Magistrate's Court that one of the accused L. S. Raju, a lawyer, had a grievance against the Chief Justice. Mr P. Medapa.

After Raju's attempts to niare or kill him with "sorcery and witchcraft" had falled, the police said, he and three accomplices hired the Chief Justice's servant; Agnes, to put poison in her master's tea. But the Chief Justice ieft the tea alone on the advice of another servant who suspected foul play: The case was adjourned until March 15. All five accused have been under arrest since mid-February.

But Speculation Persists In Political Circles

London, Mar. 2. An official denial that Mr Ernest Bevin had decided to resign as Foreign Secretary falled tonight to dispel the belief that he will shortly give up this post.

Reports that he has already taken a personal decision to leave the Foreign Office as soon as a successor can be chosen persisted strongly despite this disclaimer from the Prime Minister's office.

Usually reliable quarters had indicated that the 70-year-old Foreign Secretary might act in office in the Government as a Minister Without Portfolio.

There was little clue today about who would succeed Mr Bevin as Foreign Secretary should he really resign, weeks past political circles have speculated on the possibility that the post may go to Mr Herbert Morrison, Deputy Prime Minister and the Labour Party's chief strategist.

Other names which have been suggested are those of Mr James Griffiths, the Colonia Secretary, Mr Hector McNell, Secretary of State for Scotland and once Mr Bevin's deputy, and Mr Kenneth Younger, pre-showing stocks in hand and supplies coming forward in the subsequent two months. Our recollection is that we advanced a very similar suggestion recently to Government concerning all essential commodities with a view to determining which articles were strictly in short supply, and which were being artificially rendered unavailable to the public except at prohibitive prices. Government appears to have accepted the proposition in principle and if it shows itself to be practicable so far as antibiotic drugs are concerned, the Authorities might well, to the benefit of the community, apply the system to a variety of other essential commodities so difficult to procure unless high prices are paid by the consumer. The arrangement made by Government and pharmaceutical importers is significant in two respects: firstly it will help to demonstrate whether regular monthly stocktaking on behalf of the Authorities can ensure adequate supplies for the local market; secondly whether, by decontrol, retail prices are able to find a constant level that is fair both to the dealer and the consumer. The experiment may well be a guide for expanded action on similar

Wax Beerbohm Fantasy Over Radio Hongkong On Tuesday

On Tuesday from 10.16 to 11.15 p.m. Radio Hongkong will be broadcasting a fantasy by Sir Max Beerbohm. The story is taken from his book of essays, 'Seven Men,' and tells of two authors whom he called Hilary Maltby and Stephen Braxton, and whose names were on every fashionable tongue whose owner had literary pretensions. They were novelists; at least, each had written successful first novels, and each vied desperately with the other for the plaudits of Society.

They were running neck and neck while everyone waited breathlessly for their next literary triumphs.....and Max Beerbohm folds the tale of their second novels, of their reception by the public, and its effect on the courses of the lives of the writers themselves-in fact, this version, dramatised by the BBC and first heard in the Third Programme, goes to make as entertaining an hour's listening as you could wish, and loses none of its typically 'Maxian' flavour in the adaptation. 'Hilary Maltby and Stephen Braxton' comes at 10.16 on Tuesday evening.

Liya Gurevitch, who has given a number of piano recitale over Radio Hongkong, will be in the studio on Tuesday evening at nine o'clock to play a programme which consists of Rondo in A Minor K. 511 by Mozart, Impromptu in B. Flat Major by Schubert, and La Chasse (Fifth Grand Etude) by Paganini-Liszt.

Younger listeners will be glad to hear that Elizabeth Anne will be back on Monday at 6 o'clock to begin another fortnightly series of short stories, poems, music and songs for their Children's Half Hour.

In 'Portrait of Aran' at half past ten on Monday evening, Robert Flaherty-well-known for his film documentaries 'Nanook of the North,' 'Man of Aran,' 'Louisiana Story,' and 'The White Hell of Pitz Palu'-takes listeners back with him to the Aran Islands, off the West Coast of Ireland, to meet some of his friends who took part in the making of 'Man of Aran.' The inhabitants tell of their lives spent on the barren rocks of Aran, open to the gales of the Atlantic, where every foot of soil has been carried by man and beast from the crevices and from the seashore and spread on the naked rock.

This programme includes Irish songs and dances and part of the service of Benediction from St Brigid's Church at Kilronan. The music, sound effects, and voices of the prople were recorded on the Islands.

On Friday at 10.16 p.m. Radio Hongkong is presenting a recorded recital by the Roumanian planist, Dinu Lipatti, who recently died in Switzerland at the early age of 33. As a pianist, he made a great -name-for-himself-in-his interpretations of Chopin, and although he found little time to play for the recording companies, those records he did make have been iclaimed by critics to be as near perfection as possible. The work he is playing on Friday is TY/HETHER it's a 16th Century matchlock or a 20th Century rocket W launcher that's wanted, Frederick Dickie can produce it. From his stock of 7,500 guns, Dickle supplies weapons to cowboys and Indians, cops and robbers, women who shoot their husbands and husbands who shoot their wives-but only for Hollywood movies.

Dickie, 51, has been running the privately-owned Stembridge Gun-Room at Paramount for 25 years, renting weapons to all the studios. And if he doesn't have what they want, he makes them. A 17th Century gun is often a modern rifle in disguise.

Dickle also makes wax bullets and blanks that provide smoke.

VARIOUS TYPES of firearms, from a tiny derringer to the latest automatic, are displayed by Frederick Dickie for starlet Barbara Knudson. Guns in the Stembridge demand and amount of "face lifting" Dickie must do on it for a particular scene.

FOR HER ROLE as an enticing hillbilly, actress Mary Murphy is taught how to clean a musket. The gun is the type usually associated with mountaineers.

FROM THE MOVIE Tripoli comes this battle scene, with Dickie guns being used to defend a fort. Often hundreds of rilles are needed for one scene.

How Weapons Get a "Face Lifting" in the Stembridge Gun Room and Special-Effects Bullets Are Made for Use in Hollywood Movies

TOOLING fancy designs on a six-shooter. Dickle changes it from an ordi- GANGSTER pictures and westerns keep the gun room nary gun to a dejuxe pistol similar to those used by famous westerness, busy making hundreds of blanks and special bullets.

FIRED from a 45-cal, revolver, a wax bullet flattens against thick glass protecting a young "waitress." When beliets hit boulders shiplding gunfighters, splattering wax gives impression real bullets are chipping splinters.

Fat husbands stray less

Fat men are more faithful than thin ones, according to a British Medical Journal contributor. He points out that most male respondents in divorce cases are thin. The writer, a doctor studying obesity, says men do not often complain of fatness on social grounds, because fat young men are rare, compared with women,

Another reason, he says, is that "once married, fat men's wives practise an age-old tradition of furthering their corpulence by over-feeding. The comfortably obese male is easier to live with and less likely to stray from the path of virtue."

Dress Fabrics Go To The Head

linery story for spring 1951, is the insistence by London every kind of dress fabric for hats, as well as the coarse straw which we have come to expect. Women, they say, want something which, in the Back right sequence, will replace winter felts and velvet, and Interest for this purpose satin, grosgrain, ottoman, jet-jersey, and even chiffon and cotton are being shown in the collections of such important milliners as Hugh Beresford and Aage Thunrup.

For that Awkward Period

Notable are the pillbox hats in smocked satin, designed to fit over the back of the head, which are Aage Thaarup's latest contribution. The efforts of the milliners to fall in with the dictum of the hairdressers that hair styles will be longer for 1951, has resulted in some original designs to essist wemen over the awkward period when the hair is growing. Ribbon drapery and the closely fitted back line are two of the efforts to hide the hairline which most women will need.

Many of the new hats show higher crowns. In the Hugh Beresford collection these follow several umusual lines. some of them being cut rather like the petals of a flower, others being built up to a peak. The cloche is still popular and at this house has developed in a smaller and more becoming version than last year's model. The turban, too, is presented, na was inevitable with the coft materials being used, and there are a good many bereis, draped or stiffened, and a larger hat which can be worn with tallored suits with good effect.

THE OLDER WOMAN'S SKIN CARE

By HELEN FOLLETT

A good plan for the mature woman is to have a facial, selecting an experienced operator and following the operator's system and technique when doing her homework. She will then avoid harmful pulling and stretching movements. Five minutes of creaming and brisk massage every night will do more than a thirty-minute orgy once a week. Beautifying is a life-time job; it is sensible to do It well.

Delicate shades of make_up, placed high on the cheeks are best for the older woman. If the rosy glow descends even down to the wings of the nose, it will give the face a drawn appearance.

Darker Than Skin

If make-up is obvious, the effect is harsh and aging, Powder must be as dark as the skin, sometimes even darker. if it is to give the cutaneous coat a healthy, rich tone. Too light a powder makes the flesh look grey.

A cream powder base of delicate pinky-pink will take the place of rouge if one has a prejudice against it.

BRITAIN TO BE — BEATEN ——

O UR formations flew over the observation post. France was vanquished-so it seemed. And iorea long time Great Britain nad not been in such mortal danger.

Whatever was ahead, I was sure about one thing. If Britain was to be beaten, the man who stood looking through the telescope, his massive shape bent down, his uyes glued to the lens, would have had almost no share in the victory. He was living a private life.

I walked back to the radio munwho was about to record his raport. It illustrates the cant of hose days :-

JUNIOR LEAGUE PLAYOFFS HOLD THE SPOTLIGHT THIS WEEK-END

The Junior League playoffs grab the softball spotlight again this week as the Blackhawks stage a last ditch stand to get back into the pennant picture with a win against the favourite Dragons, whom they meet at 2 p.m. this afternoon, while the surprising Delawares cross bats with the Rexes for the first time at 3.30 p.m.

The Senior League schedule runs into the second last week of the elimination series with four tussles carded for tomorrow, and even though the outcome of these games will not affect the chances of the finalists, rivalry among these teams is so keen that interesting games are expected.

Scalpers and Scalp-savers

By Richard S. Bloch

VERY year the newspapers contain many stories about dogs do heroic deeds for their masters. Homes have been saved from fire, children have been rescued from injury or death, and countless robbery attempts have been foiled-all because of our canine pals. One story people will never forget concerns a group of dogs who saved an entire city.

In the winter of 1925 a serious diphtheria epidemie struck Nome, Alaska, and threatened to wipe out the entire community. It was important that diphtheria anti-toxin be rushed to the scene. days. The railway ran only to a certain point and from there on the vital material had to be transported over snowy trails by dog team. Huskies and drivers were chosen Gunnar Kasson, on one of the last laps of the journey, missed his relay because of a raging blizzard that obscured the dogs and the trail. He decided to continue on with the antitoxin. He could do nothing but put his faith in the lead dog, Balto, to find the way. As the team struggled forward became apparent that the dogs did know the route to Nome and the city was saved.

The news of this great achievement spread quickly, and inspired men, women, and children all over the world. The Senate of the United States halted other business on the afternoon of Feb. 6, 1925, and heard Senator Dill of Washington praise the gallant animals and men who performed the feat.

What became of the dogs? A film company contracted to use them in the movies, but because of a disagreement the Huskies were sold. They were seen on to protect the men working in their father, scampered into finally were displayed in a the stage, in sideshows, and gloomy, smoky, dime museum Los Angeles. BIGGER AND BETTER

A hundred years have passed since Queen Victoria opened in London the first 'Great Exhibition' and revealed to the world the manifold ways in which British enterprise and skill were pioneering to increase the ease and interest of life. For some time past, we have been planning to celebrate this anniversary by a Festival in which every aspect of British life will be on display. In particular, we are making the 1951 British Industries Fair an occasion for the world to see the full extent of our recovery and our resources. We can promise that the B.I.F., like British Industry itself, will be bigger and better than ever. Over three thousand exhibitors from a hundred trade groups will put their latest and finest products on show.

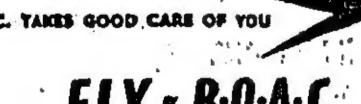

Few enterprising buyers will miss this unparalleled opportunity of seeing what Britain has now to offer. Thousands have made early arrangements for their visit, so please make your reservations without delay.

YOUR BURTHEDAY By STELLA

SATURDAY, MARCH 3

FF you are born today, you have an inventiveness that almost amounts to centus. In fact, if you put your creative powers to work for you, the chances are that you will make some discovery that will benefit the entire world. The potentialities exist within you. It is up to you to develop these gibs. Apply your dreams and ideas in some practical fashion to some problem and you will discover that the results are amazing.

You have a magnetic personality and have many of the attributes of a natural leader. You have a fine memory and know how to meet people pleasantly and without effort. You have a rather philosophical turn of mind and if things are going against you for a while, you hugh it off, straighten up your aboulders and go out-after-your objective twice as strenuously. Although you are solf-confident you are not one to deceive yourself. You know when something is good and when to fight for it. If an idea falls, through you forget it and when to fight for it. If an idea falls through, you forget it and start hunting around for a new one. This is another element of last-

Despite this practical side of your nature, you are something of a romanticist. You dream dreams and hold high ideals. This is true, also, of your attachments for members of the opposite sex.
